

INDEX

PAGE

PETITION :

Jurisdiction .....	1
Statement of Case .....	2
Opinion Below .....	3
Question Presented .....	3
Reason for Granting Petition .....	4
Prayer .....	4

BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF PETITION :

Specification of Errors .....	5
Statement of Fundamental Premise .....	6
Summary of Argument .....	6

Argument—

POINT I—Section 21, U. S. C. Title 50, is not a penal statute. It defines no crime. It prescribes no punishment. It contains no legislative standard. It is merely declaratory of certain war powers and it provides an exclusive, plenary remedy for enforcing such powers .....	7
---	---

POINT II—The Presidential Proclamation, No. 2537, dated January 14, 1942, and the rules and regulations respecting registration of enemy aliens, promulgated under authority of Section 21, U. S. C. Title 50, are mere administrative rules and regulations, and do not have such force and effect at law that non-compliance therewith constitutes a crime under any law of the United States.....	11
--	----

POINT III—The decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit is in apparent conflict with the decisions of this Court in United States v. Eaton , 144 U. S. 677, and Singer v. United States , 323 U. S. 338 .....	16
---	----

CONCLUSION .....	18
------------------	----

APPENDIX:

PAGE

Opinions—

United States v. Schefold.....	19
United States v. Heine.....	19
United States v. Barra.....	20

TABLE OF CASES CITED

Delacey v. United States, 249 Fed. 625, 161 C. C. A. 535	9
Hirabayashi v. United States, 320 U. S. 81.....	17
Hudspeth v. Melville, 127 F. (2nd) 373.....	14
Singer v. United States, 323 U. S. 338.....	3, 7, 12, 14, 16, 17
United States v. Eaton, 144 U. S. 677.....	3, 6, 7, 12, 13, 15, 16, 17
United States v. 11,150 Pounds of Butter, 195 Fed. 657	14
United States v. Gilliland, 312 U. S. 86.....	16, 17
United States v. Grimaud, 220 U. S. 506.....	13
United States v. McDermott, 131 F. (2nd) 313.....	14
United States v. Meyer, 140 F. (2nd) 652.....	16, 17
United States ex rel. Schwarzkopf v. Uhl, 137 F. (2nd) 898 .....	8
Viereck v. United States, 318 U. S. 242, 63 S. Ct. 563.....	13

OTHER AUTHORITIES

Presidential Proclamation No. 2525.....	10
Presidential Proclamation No. 2526.....	10
Presidential Proclamation No. 2527.....	10
Presidential Proclamation No. 2537.....	6, 11, 15
United States Supreme Court Rules:
Rule 38 .....	4
18 U. S. C. Sec. 80.....	3, 12, 15, 16, 17
21 U. S. C. Sec. 50.....	3, 6, 7, 11, 12, 15

Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM 1944

---

No.

---

WILHELM SCHEFOLD,

Petitioner,

vs.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

---

PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI

The petitioner herein prays that a writ of certiorari issue to review the decision and judgment of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit entered on May 14, 1945 (Rec. pp. 11-12), affirming a judgment of conviction of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York (Rec. p. 8).

Jurisdiction

The jurisdiction of the Court is invoked under Section 240(a) of the Judicial Code as amended by the Act of February 13, 1925 (43 Stat. 938, 28 U. S. C. Sec. 347), and under Rule 38 of the Revised Rules of this Court.

Statement of Case

The petitioner was indicted September 5, 1944, on one count charging a violation of Section 80, U. S. C. Title 18 (Rec. pp. 4-5), in that on February 14, 1942, he made application to the Department of Justice for a Certificate of Identification as an alien enemy, knowing the said application to contain a false statement.

Specifically, the application form inquired as to membership in clubs, societies and organizations during the then past five years, and the petitioner who had fought in last war but who came to this country in 1928 and has ever since worked for a firm of custom gunsmiths, answered "German veteran", whereas, according to the indictment, he was a member of Nazi Party and the National Socialist War Victims Relief Association, successor, in 1933, to the local veteran organizations.

Fourteen other persons were separately charged with similar offenses, and as each in turn was tried and convicted, counsel below, whose demurrer and motion to quash had been overruled and denied (Rec. pp. 5-7), after considering the lower Court's rulings on the admission of evidence and the attitudes of the several trial juries, advised the petitioner to enter a plea of guilty. He was sentenced to serve a term of six months imprisonment, and judgment and commitment were entered accordingly (Rec. pp. 7-8).

Notice of appeal was then filed (Rec. p. 9) upon the ground that the indictment did not charge a crime against the United States and the District Court below was without jurisdiction in the premises.

The conviction was affirmed April 27, 1945 (Rec. p. 11), and judgment filed May 14, 1945 (Rec. p. 12).

Opinion Below

The opinion of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals is set forth in the record certified to this Court (Rec. p. 11) and in the appendix to the brief herein (App. p. 19). The opinion cites only United States v. Heine, and United States v. Barra, decided at the same time, and the relevant portions of those decisions are therefore included in the appendix at pages 19 and 20 respectively.

Question Presented

The question presented is whether Section 80, U. S. C. Title 18, is applicable to statements made in response to administrative rules and regulations promulgated by the Executive Department pursuant to the authority of Section 21, U. S. C. Title 50.

More specifically, the question presented is whether a statement made in response to and required by an administrative rule and regulation so promulgated, is a statement so required by law that a false response constitutes a crime against the United States within the purview of Section 80, U. S. C. Title 18.

The determination of this question involves the proper construction of these two sections, and depends upon the application or rejection of the principles and doctrines set forth in the decisions of this Court in the cases of United States v. Eaton, 144 U. S. 677, and Singer v. United States, 323 U. S. 338. With all due respect the decision below takes no cognizance of either decision and is in conflict therewith.

Reasons for Granting Petition

The reasons relied upon for granting this petition are those referred to in Rule 38 of this Court, namely, that the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit—has decided an important question of Federal law probably in conflict with applicable decisions of this Court or—

has decided a question of substance relating to the construction or application of the Constitution, or treaty, or statute of the United States, which has not been, but should be, settled by this Court.

Wherefore, your petitioner prays that a writ of certiorari issue to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit commanding said Court to certify and send to this Court on a day to be designated, a full and complete transcript of the record and all proceedings of said Circuit Court of Appeals had in this cause, to the end that this cause may be reviewed and determined by this Court; that the judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals be reversed, and that the petitioner be granted such other and further relief as may seem proper.

Dated: New York, N. Y., June 16, 1945.

JAMES L. GERRY,
Counsel for Petitioner.

Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM 1944

---

No.

---

WILHELM SCHEFOLD,

Petitioner,

VS.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

---

BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF PETITION

---

Specification of Errors

1. It was error for the District Court to overrule petitioner's demurrer and deny his motion to quash the indictment upon the ground that the facts and acts alleged therein do not charge the defendant with any crime or offense under or against any law of the United States.

2. It was error for the District Court to entertain the indictment, to accept the petitioner's plea thereto, and to enter its judgment and commitment thereon, for the reason that the Court was at all times without jurisdiction to take any action in the premises.

Statement of Fundamental Premise

All legislative power is vested in the Congress. Congress alone can define crimes and prescribe punishments.

The Congress may not delegate this power, but it may enact a legislative standard for the guidance of the Executive.

Rules and regulations promulgated by the Executive Department, in accordance with such a standard, have the full force of law, and may be enforced by criminal prosecution if non-compliance therewith, or a violation thereof, has been defined as a crime against the United States by an Act of Congress.

In the absence of a legislative standard, and in the absence of specific Congressional ratification, rules and regulations promulgated by the Executive Department are mere administrative rules and regulations, and things required thereby are not things so required by law that non-compliance therewith constitutes a crime or offense under or against any law of the United States.

No question is raised with respect to the validity of Section 21, U. S. C. Title 50, or the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder, and no collateral attack is made upon either.

It is respectfully submitted, however, that in the light of the foregoing principles, as expounded in the case of United States v. Eaton, 144 U. S. 677, an essential element in the constitution of a crime against the United States is lacking.

Summary of Argument

POINT I. Section 21, U. S. C. Title 50, is not a penal statute. It defines no crime. It prescribes no punishment. It contains no legislative standard. It is merely declaratory of certain war powers and it provides an exclusive, plenary remedy for enforcing such powers.

POINT II. The Presidential Proclamation, No. 2537, dated January 14, 1942, and the rules and regulations of the Attorney General respecting registration of enemy aliens, promulgated under authority of Section 21, U. S. C. Title 50, are mere administrative rules and regulations, and do not have such force and effect at law that non-compliance therewith constitutes a crime under any law of the United States.

POINT III. The decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit is in apparent conflict with the decisions of this Court in United States v. Eaton, 144 U. S. 677, and Singer v. United States, 323 U. S. 338.

ARGUMENT

POINT I

Section 21, U. S. C. Title 50, is not a penal statute. It defines no crime. It prescribes no punishment. It contains no legislative standard. It is merely declaratory of certain war powers and it provides an exclusive, plenary remedy for enforcing such powers.

The section provides as follows:

SECTION 21. Restraint, regulation, and removal. Whenever there is a declared war between the United States and any foreign nation or government, or any invasion or predatory incursion is perpetrated, attempted, or threatened against the territory of the United States by any foreign nation or government, and the President makes public proclamation of the event, all natives, citizens, denizens, or subjects of the hostile nation or government, being of the age of fourteen years and upward, who shall be within the United States and not actually naturalized, shall be liable to be apprehended, restrained, secured, and removed as alien enemies. The President is authorized, in any such event, by his proclamation thereof, or other public act, to direct the conduct to be observed, on the part of the United States, toward the aliens who become so liable; the manner and degree of the restraint to which they shall be subject and in what cases, and upon what security their residence shall be permitted, and to provide for the removal of those who, not being permitted to reside within the United States, refuse or neglect to depart therefrom; and to establish any other regulations which are found necessary in the premises and for the public safety" (Apr. 16, 1918, c. 55, 40 Stat., R. S. 4067).

This section is derived from the Act of July 6, 1798, c. 66, § 1, 1 Stat. 577, as amended by the Act of April 16, 1918, c. 55, cited in the text. The amendment consisted only in striking therefrom the word "males" between the word "being" and the words "of the age of fourteen years and upward".

It is based, we believe, upon a recognition of the fact that citizenship is an accident of birth, and that while war gives aliens the status of "enemies", it does not make criminals of them. They are to be treated on a different basis, under the Geneva Convention and the Law of Nations, as "Prisoners of War", and not as felons, confined in a penitentiary at hard labor. This distinction rests upon universal recognition of the fact that patriotism and loyalty to one's own people, like citizenship, are also accidents of birth, and that in times of war, we have no moral right to demand or expect loyal and patriotic support from those "alien enemies" found within our borders upon the declaration of a state of war.

Thus it has been recently stated in the United States ex rel. Schwarzkopf v. Uhl, C. C. A. 2nd, Aug., 1943, 137 F. (2nd) 898, 902:

"The obvious purpose of the act was to include within its ambit all aliens who by reason of ties of nationality or allegiance might be likely to favor 'the hostile nation or government' and might therefore commit acts dangerous to our public safety if allowed to remain at large."

The early authorities were marshalled in the case of Delacey v. U. S. (C. C. A. Cal. 1918), 249 Fed. 625, 161 C. C. A. 535. Nowhere is there any suggestion that the powers conferred are of a penal nature; indeed, to the contrary.

"The first reported case arising under the Alien Enemy Act is Lockington's Case, Brightly, N. P. (Pa.) 269. Lockington, an alien enemy, had refused to comply with the executive order of February 23, 1813, requiring alien enemies who were within 40 miles of tidewater to retire to such places beyond that distance from tidewater as should be designated by the marshals. He was arrested, and on petition for habeas corpus attempted to test the legality of his imprisonment. Chief Justice Tilghman said of the act:

"It is a provision for the public safety which may require that the alien should not be removed but kept in the country under proper restraints. * * * It is never to be forgotten that the main object of the law is to provide for the safety of the country from enemies who are suffered to remain within it. In order to effect this safety, it might be necessary to act on sudden emergencies. * * * The President, being best acquainted with the danger to be apprehended, is best able to judge of the emergency which might render such measures necessary. Accordingly, we find that the powers vested in him are expressed in the most comprehensive terms.'

* * * * *

"And answering the contention that judicial authority must be resorted to to enforce the regulations so established by the President under the law, he (Washington, Circuit Justice, in Lockington v. Smith, 1 Pet. C. C. 466, Fed. Cas. No. 8, 448) said:

"Such a construction would, in my opinion be at variance with the spirit as well as with the letter of the law, the great object of which was to provide for the public safety by imposing such restraints upon alien enemies as the chief executive magistrate of the United States might think necessary, and of which his particular situation enabled him best to judge.'

"In the Case of Fries, 9 Fed. Case No. 5126, Circuit Justice Iredell, charging the jury concerning the provisions of The Alien Enemy Act said:

"In cases like this it is ridiculous to talk of the crime, because perhaps the only crime that a man can then be charged with is his being born in another country and having a strong attachment to it. He is not punished for a crime that he has committed, but deprived of the power of committing one hereafter, to which even a sense of patriotism may tempt a warm and misguided mind. * * * The opportunities during a war of making use of men of such a description are so numerous and so dangerous that no prudent nation would ever trust to the possible good behavior of many of them.'"

Thus, the President, by his Proclamations of December 7 and 8, 1941 (Nos. 2525, 2526, 2527), vested the Attorney-General with summary power, under Section 21 of Title 50, to intern "alien enemies" whom he deemed dangerous to our security; which is to say, any alien whose loyalty appeared to be to his own country rather than to ours. Beyond this, the President further declared that those aliens who were not so interned, should comply with certain regulations respecting their conduct, and he charged the Attorney-General with the duty or responsibility of seeing that these regulations were observed. The details were left to the discretion of the Attorney-General, and he was authorized to declare such further regulations as might be necessary or appropriate in the premises.

But it does not follow that the regulations proclaimed by the President, or subsequently issued by the Attorney-General, could be enforced, in the absence of congressional ratification, by resort to the criminal code.

We have no fault to find with any of the rules or regulations promulgated thereunder, or under Proclamation No. 2537 of January 14, 1942. Indeed, we are in no position to criticize or question them. But we do most respectfully urge that any non-compliance with such regulations at most could do nothing more than evidence a state of mind, or loyalty, that bears upon the question whether a given alien should be interned or required to give some further security for good behavior. This is an extraordinary administrative remedy, authorized by the terms of Section 21, and duly proclaimed by the President. It is exclusive under the circumstances, and plenary in scope, but it is not "criminal". And it is by reason of this distinction that the writ of habeas corpus has been suspended in cases of internment, thereby placing the application of the remedy beyond the realm of judicial review.

How is it possible to assert and maintain, as the Department of Justice inevitably must, that the congressional authority (Section 21, U. S. C. Title 50) for the exercise of this plenary, non-reviewable function or power was at one and the same time authority for the promulgation of administrative rules and regulations having the full force and effect of law and therefore enforceable by reference to the criminal code?

POINT II

The Presidential Proclamation, No. 2537, dated January 14, 1942, and the rules and regulations respecting registration of enemy aliens, promulgated under authority of Section 21, U. S. C. Title 50, are mere administrative rules and regulations, and do not have such force and effect at law that non-compliance therewith constitutes a crime under any law of the United States.

This Proclamation, after reciting that the President was acting under authority of Sections 21 et seq., Title 50, U. S. C., states in part:

"All alien enemies within the continental United States * * * are hereby required, at such times and places and in such manner as may be fixed by the Attorney General of the United States, to apply for and acquire certificates of identification; and the Attorney General is hereby authorized and directed to provide, as speedily as may be practicable, for the receiving of such applications and for the issuance of appropriate identification certificates, and to make such rules and regulations as he may deem necessary for effecting such identifications; and all alien enemies and all other persons are hereby required to comply with such rules and regulations." (Italics ours.)

It may be observed at this point that if the italicized language means anything it must mean the authority vested in the Executive by Section 21 of Title 50, the power to intern anyone who failed to respond and comply therewith.

There does not appear to be any dispute about the first part of this point. In the brief submitted below in opposition to the petitioner's motion for bail pending appeal, the following statement was made:

"As we shall see in a moment, the regulations pertaining to Certificates of Identification, issued by the Attorney General, were administrative and non-discretionary and wholly reasonable."

However, the crux of the matter is in the application of the doctrine laid down in United States v. Eaton, 144 U. S. 677, and Singer v. United States, 323 U. S. 338. According to this doctrine, in the Eaton case, non-compliance with a regulation of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, issued under authority of Section 20 of the Oleomargarine Act of August 2, 1886 (24 Stat. 209) was held not punishable under Section 18 of the same Act because the thing required by the regulation was not a thing required by law.

It is respectfully submitted that the doctrine of the Eaton case is controlling herein, and that a violation of the Attorney General's regulations issued under authority of Section 21, U. S. C. Title 50, is no more punishable under Section 80, U. S. C. Title 18, than the violation of the Commissioner's regulations was punishable under Section 18 of the Oleomargarine Act. At pages 687-688 of the opinion the Court said:

" * * * It is a principle of criminal law that an offense which may be the subject of criminal procedure is an act committed or omitted 'in violation of a public law, either forbidding or commending it', 4 American & English Encyclopedia of Law, 642; 4 BL. Com. 5.

"It would be a very dangerous principle to hold that a thing prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, as a needful regulation under the oleomargarine act, for carrying it into effect, could be considered as a thing 'required by law' * * *.

"Regulations prescribed by the President and by the heads of departments, under authority granted by Congress, may be regulations prescribed by law, so as lawfully to support acts done under them and in accordance with them, and may thus have, in a proper sense, the force of law; but it does not follow that a thing required by them is a thing so required, as to make the neglect to do the thing a criminal offense in a citizen, when a statute does not distinctly make the neglect in question a criminal offense."

This decision was recently cited by this Court in the case of Viereck v. United States, 318 U. S. 242, 63 S. Ct. 563, wherein it was said:

"One may be subjected to punishment for crime in the federal courts only for the commission or omission of an act defined by statute, or by regulation having legislative authority, and then only if punishment is authorized by Congress. United States v. George, 228 U. S. 14, 20-22; Williamson v. United States, 207 U. S. 425, 453-62; United States v. Standard Brewery, 251 U. S. 210, 219-20; United States v. Eaton, 144 U. S. 677; United States v. Grimaud, 220 U. S. 506; United States v. Small, 236 U. S. 405; In re Kollack, 165 U. S. 526."

The Eaton case was cited and distinguished in United States v. Grimaud, 220 U. S. 506, 515, 518-519, and in United States v. McDermott (C. C. A. 7th, Nov., 1942), 131 F. (2nd) 313, 316, and cited and followed in Hudspeth v. Melville (C. C. A. 10th, Nov., 1941), 127 F. (2nd) 373, 375, wherein the Court stated:

"There is no common law offense against the United States * * * (citing cases) * * *. The criminal jurisdiction of the courts of the United States is derived exclusively from acts of Congress * * * (citing additional cases)."

And thus in another case, United States v. 11,150 Pounds of Butter (C. C. A. 8th, 1912), 195 Fed. 657, it was held that a regulation of an executive officer or department, under legislative authority to make rules to enforce an act of Congress, which regulation subjects classes of property to forfeiture and classes of persons to penalties that are excluded by the statute, is void. In the opinion of the Court (pp. 663-664):

"Implied authority in an executive officer or department to repeal, extend, or modify an act of Congress, may not be lawfully inferred from authority to enforce it, and a regulation of the Secretary of the Treasury, or other executive officer, made under legislative authority to make rules to enforce an Act of Congress, which has the effect to subject classes of property to forfeiture and classes of persons to fines and penalties under the Act, that are excluded therefrom by the terms of the law, is unauthorized and void * * *. The definition of offenses, the classification of offenders, and the prescription of the punishment they shall suffer, are legislative, and neither executive nor judicial functions. And forfeitures, fines, and penalties, may not be prescribed, imposed, or inflicted for violations of a regulation of an executive without previous legislative prescription."

Of paramount interest, however, in relation to the petition herein, is the very recent decision of this Court in Singer v. United States, 323 U. S. 338, a five to four decision, wherein the Court stated at pages 344-345:

"It is said that United States v. Eaton, 144 U. S. 677, established a principle of federal criminal law that a provision which only punishes violations of a 'law' does not cover violations of rules and regulations made in conformity with that law. It is therefore argued that Section 6 of the Criminal Code does not embrace violations of rules or regulations and that Section 11 filled that gap by adding 'rules and regulations' to the force and violence clause. Here again the legislative history leaves that question wholly to conjecture. United States v. Eaton turned on its own special facts, as United States v. Grimaud, 220 U. S. 506, 518-519, emphasizes. It has not been construed to state a fixed principle that a regulation can never be a 'law' for purposes of criminal prosecution. It may or may not be depending on the structure of the particular statute." (Italics ours.)

Thus while the majority of the Court distinguished the Eaton case on the particular facts involved, the question whether Section 80, U. S. C. Title 18, should be construed to cover statements made to the Department of Justice, pursuant to administrative regulations of the Attorney General issued under authority of Presidential Proclamation No. 2537 of January 14, 1942, and Section 21, U. S. C. Title 50, is an open one which should be decided by this Court.

Beyond this, however, it is respectfully submitted that, if the view expressed in the minority opinion should be held applicable to the instant case, then no crime was charged in the indictment and the District Court was without jurisdiction to enter judgment of conviction. At pages 350-351, the dissenting opinion by Mr. Justice Frankfurter states:

"United States v. Eaton is not a judicial sport. It is the application of a principle which has been un-deviatingly applied by this Court—most recently in Viereck v. United States, 318 U. S. 236, 241—and upon the basis of which Congress legislates. In re Kollock, 165 U. S. 526; United States v. Grimaud, supra; United States v. George, 228 U. S. 14. The principle is that a crime is defined by Congress, not by an executive agency. See United States v. Small, 236 U. S. 405, 409. 'Where the charge is of crime, it must have clear legislative basis.' United States v. George, supra, at 22. It is only when Congress in advance prescribes criminal sanctions for violations of authorized rules that violations of such rules can be punished as crimes. It is this far-reaching distinction which, it was pointed out in the Grimaud case, put on one side the doctrine of the Eaton case, where a violation of rules and regulations was not made criminal, and on the other side legislation such as that enforced in the Grimaud case where Congress specifically provided that 'any violation of the provisions of this Act or such rules and regulations [of the Secretary of Agriculture] shall be punished.' (Italics added by Mr. Justice Lamar). United States v. Grimaud, supra, at 515."

POINT III

The decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit is in apparent conflict with the decisions of this Court in United States v. Eaton, 144 U. S. 677, and Singer v. United States, 323 U. S. 338.

The decision of the Circuit Court is printed in the record certified to this Court, at page 11 thereof, and in the Appendix to this brief at page 19. Inasmuch as it cites only the Heine case and the Barra case, argued and decided at the same time as the instant case, the relevant portions of these two opinions are also incorporated in the Appendix hereto at pages 19 and 20 respectively.

It is to be noted that the issue as to the applicability of Section 80, U. S. C. Title 18, to the false statement charged in the indictment was affirmatively decided in the Heine case, on the authority of United States v. Meyer, 140 F. (2nd) 652, and United States v. Gilliland, 312 U. S. 86.

It is respectfully submitted that neither of these cases is in point, and that the decision below, therefore, rejects the doctrine of United States v. Eaton, and fails to make the appropriate and necessary determination found in Singer v. United States, supra.

The case of United States v. Meyer involved the application of Section 80, U. S. C. Title 18, to false statements made before an army exclusion board established under Executive Order No. 9066, issued February 19, 1942. The decision is founded upon the case of Hirabayashi v. United States, 320 U. S. 81, wherein this Court held that Congress by the Act of March 21, 1942 (Section 97(a), U. S. C. Title 18) had "ratified and confirmed Executive Order No. 9066", the standard therein set forth, and the Proclamations issued thereunder.

Based upon this "ratification", the Meyer decision held that later Proclamations under the same Executive Order No. 9066, establishing exclusion boards and prescribing the procedure to be followed, had the full force and effect of law (as distinct from mere administrative regulations), and in consequence, a false statement made in such proceeding was a false statement within the purview of Section 80, U. S. C. Title 18.

United States v. Gilliland, 312 U. S. 86, on the other hand, involved the application of this same section to false reports filed pursuant to regulations issued under authority of the National Recovery Act. The Court held that the subsequent determination that the Act was unconstitutional was not a bar to prosecution for the filing of false reports, during the period while there was apparent authority for the regulations requiring the reports.

This doctrine of apparent or colorable authority, however, cannot serve to raise mere administrative regulations, such as we are admittedly concerned with herein, to the dignity of regulations having the full force of law. This is the province of Congress. Such regulations must have a legislative foundation, which is to say, they must either rest upon a standard enacted by Congress or gain their force from subsequent ratification.

It is respectfully submitted that the decision of the Circuit Court is therefore in apparent conflict with the applicable decisions of this Court.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated in the petition herein and this brief in support thereof, it is respectfully submitted that the indictment below failed to charge a crime against any law of the United States, and the District Court for the Eastern District of New York was at all times without jurisdiction to enter judgment and commitment in the premises.

Wherefore it is respectfully submitted that this petition for a writ of certiorari to review the judgment of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit should be granted.

JAMES L. GERRY,
Counsel for Petitioner.

ELBRIDGE E. GERRY
On the Brief.

APPENDIX

United States v. Schefold*, U. S. C. C. A. 2nd, October Term 1944. Argued April 12, 1945. Decided April 27, 1945.

"The only issue on this appeal is the applicability of 18 U. S. C. A. § 80 to a false denial of Nazi Party membership upon an application for a certificate of identification as an alien enemy—a question we have just considered in United States v. Heine, 2 Cir., — F. 2d —, and United States v. Barra, 2 Cir., — F. 2d —, decided herewith. For the reasons there stated, we hold the statute applicable.

Affirmed."

United States v. Heine*, U. S. C. C. A. 2nd, October Term 1944. Argued April 12, 1945. Decided April 27, 1945.

"Defendant asserts however that 18 U. S. C. A. § 80 is not applicable because the Presidential Proclamation and the regulations pursuant thereto, particularly § 13(a), 28 C. F. R., Cum. Supp., 30.63(a) prescribe their own penalty for failure to comply with the regulations, namely, apprehension, detention and internment for the duration of the war. But that penalty is not specifically designed to cover falsification of an application. It covers the obvious omission to apply for or procure a certificate of identification. The purpose of the procedure requiring aliens to obtain certificates of identification and to answer the specific question on the application was to enable the authorities to ascertain in which cases apprehension, restraint and removal should be exercised in accordance with 50 U. S. C. A. § 21 so that they would not be compelled to intern all enemy aliens. Defendant's very purpose in lying about his Nazi Party membership was to escape probable internment. Punishment for such falsification should be something beyond that which would have attended a truthful response, and the statute here, as it has been uniformly construed, accomplishes that very purpose. It is applicable to any person who 'shall knowingly and wilfully * * * make * * * any false certificate, affidavit, or deposition, knowing the same to contain any fraudulent or fictitious statement or entry in any matter within the jurisdiction of any department or agency of the United States', 18 U. S. C. A. § 80. Thus it prescribes an over-all penalty for falsification no matter what other penalties the statutes or regulations in connection with which the falsification occurs, may dictate. There can be no doubt that defendant's falsification comes within its purview. U. S. v. Mayer, 2nd Cir., 140 F. 2d 652; U. S. v. Gilliland, 312 U. S. 86."

United States v. Barra* (same group of cases).

"But defendant also urges the inapplicability of the statute, though he gives a somewhat different turn to the argument than did Heine. Since we have already held the statute applicable, we shall dispose of the argument shortly, for it is fundamentally controlled by our decision as to Heine. Defendant says that since 50 U. S. C. A. 21, authorizing the President to restrain alien enemies, provides no penalty for failure or refusal of an alien to register, neither the President nor the Attorney General can make a crime out of a step in the application they required. But defendant is here accused not of violating the Presidential Proclamation or regulations thereunder, but of making a false certificate to a department of the United States and as we held expressly in U. S. v. Meyer, 2 Cir. 140 F. 2d 652, once it appears that the department 'has colorable authority to do what it is doing', an accused under this statute cannot justify his falsehood by a collateral attack on the authority. This follows from the decisions in U. S. v. Knapp, 302 U. S. 214; Kay v. U. S., 302 U. S. 1; Carter v. Texas, 305 U. S. 557. Such authority is clearly present here. 50 U. S. C. A. 21 not only gives the President power to restrain alien enemies in this country but confers upon him the further authority 'to establish any other regulations which are found necessary in the premises and for the public safety.' The Presidential Proclamation of January 14, 1942, 3 C. F. R. Cum. Supp. Proc. 2537, and the regulations which it authorized the Attorney General to make for acquiring of certificates of identification, 28 C. F. R. Cum. Supp. 30.51-30.63 are more than sufficient to make 18 U. S. C. A. § 80 applicable in the circumstances."

INDEX

---

	Page
Opinion below .....	1
Jurisdiction .....	1
Question presented .....	2
Statutes and regulations involved .....	2
Statement .....	2
Argument .....	3
Conclusion .....	4

CITATIONS

Cases:

Kay v. United States , 303 U. S. 1 .....	4
Koeniger v. United States , No. 136, this Term .....	2, 3
United States v. Barra , decided April 27, 1945 .....	3
United States v. Eaton , 144 U. S. 677 .....	3
United States v. Kapp , 302 U. S. 214 .....	4

Statutes and Regulations:

Section 35 (A) of the Criminal Code .....	2
R. S. 4067 .....	3
R. S. 4069 .....	3, 4

In the Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM, 1945

---

No. 135

WILHELM SCHEFOLD, PETITIONER

v.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

---

*ON PETITION FOR A WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE
UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE SECOND CIRCUIT*

---

BRIEF FOR THE UNITED STATES IN OPPOSITION

---

OPINION BELOW

The opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals (R. 11) has not yet been reported.

JURISDICTION

The judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals was entered May 14, 1945 (R. 12). The petition for a writ of certiorari was filed June 18, 1945. The jurisdiction of this Court is invoked under Section 240 (a) of the Judicial Code, as amended by the Act of February 13, 1925. See also Rules XI and XIII of the Criminal Appeals Rules promulgated by this Court May 7, 1934.

QUESTION PRESENTED

Whether the fact that an application for a certificate of identification by an enemy alien is required by virtue of a presidential proclamation and regulations of the Attorney General rather than under a specific act of Congress, exonerates petitioner from liability to prosecution under Section 35 (A) of the Criminal Code for making a false statement in such an application.

STATUTES AND REGULATIONS INVOLVED

The pertinent statutory provisions and regulations are printed at pages 2-5 of the Government's brief in opposition in the companion case of Koeniger v. United States, No. 136, this Term, to which we respectfully refer the Court.

STATEMENT

An indictment in one count was returned against petitioner in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York, charging that, in violation of Section 35 (A) of the Criminal Code, he had made a false statement of a material fact in a matter within the jurisdiction of the United States Department of Justice in that, in an application for a certificate of identification required of enemy aliens, he had stated that he belonged to no clubs, organizations or societies other than the "German Veteran" during the five-year period preceding the date of the application, whereas in fact he had been a member of and affiliated with the Nazi Party and the National Socialist War Victims Relief Association during that period (R. 4-5). Petitioner's demurrer and motion to quash the indictment were overruled (R. 3, 5-7). He thereafter entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to imprisonment for six months (R. 3, 7-8). On appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, predicated solely on the contention that the indictment failed to state an offense against the United States (R. 9-10), the judgment was affirmed (R. 12).

ARGUMENT

Petitioner contends that this case falls within the doctrine of United States v. Eaton, 144 U. S. 677, holding that a violation of a regulation is not a crime unless Congress has specifically declared that noncompliance with the regulation shall constitute a crime. However, as the court below pointed out in its decision in the companion case of United States v. Barra, decided April 27, 1945, the pertinent portion of which is reprinted at pp. 20-21 of the petition for a writ of certiorari, petitioner was not here charged with a violation of a regulation, but with making a false statement in a matter within the jurisdiction of an agency of the United States.<sup>1</sup> Petitioner might have refused to comply with the regulations of the President and the Attorney General and thus have subjected himself to the sanctions specified for non-compliance in R. S. 4069. But, having chosen to give the appearance of compliance, he was under a duty to comply honestly; and when he did not do so, he was subject to the punishment specifically provided by Congress for the act of making false statements to an agency of the United States in a matter within its jurisdiction. Petitioner does not dispute (Pet. 10-11) that the application for a certificate of identification was a matter within the jurisdiction of an agency of the United States. And even if the regulations were vulnerable to direct attack in a proper proceeding, such invalidity would not constitute a defense to a prosecution for making a false statement in respect of a matter covered by the regulations. Kay v. United States, 303 U. S. 1, 6-7; United States v. Kapp, 302 U. S. 214, 218.

<sup>1</sup> By the same token, there is no merit in petitioner's argument (Pet. 7-11) that R. S. 4069 provides exclusive sanctions for violations of regulations issued pursuant to R. S. 4067. See also our Brief in Opposition in Koenig v. United States, No. 136, this Term.

CONCLUSION

The petition for a writ of certiorari should be denied.

Respectfully submitted.

HUGH B. COX,
Acting Solicitor General.

JAMES M. McINERNEY,
Acting Head, Criminal Division.

ROBERT S. ERDAHL,
BEATRICE ROSENBERG,
Attorneys.

JULY 1945.

